Locating your headquarters or business in this building makes a statement to clients and competitors alike.

Elevate your business profile.

Located at the corner of Fourth and Vine streets in Cincinnati's Central Business District, 401 Vine was built in 1905 for the German National Bank and designed in 1903 by Rapp, Zettel and Rapp whose architects were involved in some of Cincinnati's most iconic structures such as the Krohn Conservatory, Woodward Theater, the Mariemont Inn, and the ornamental fountain of Hyde Park Square.

This beautiful Beaux Art building features character inside and out including the original Mosler Safe door located in the reception area of the 2nd floor and over-sized arched windows on the 3rd floor.

Bank of America occupies one of the street level spaces, and a Red Bike station is just outside. Both Metro and Connector have stops within two blocks.

This central location puts the lively streets of Over-the-Rhine and Fountain Square entertainment to the north with The Banks, Smale Riverfront Park, Great American Ball Park and Paul Brown Stadium just a few blocks to the south.

This property is more than just commercial real estate...

...it is a contributing structure to the West Fourth Street Historic District, offering a unique opportunity to secure a significant, high-profile location in the heart of the city. For discerning business owners looking for a location with character, substance, and a story that aligns with their brand values, this Beaux-Arts masterpiece is ready to become your new address.

Modern Functionality Meets Historic Charm

The 2nd, 3rd, and 4th floors have been meticulously renovated for contemporary business needs, blending a modern office loft feel with the building's original aesthetics.

Exquisite Craftsmanship

The facade is adorned with richly detailed features, including elaborate balustrades and deep cornices, offering a distinguished aesthetic that sets your business apart.

Imposing Grandeur and Symmetry

The structure boasts a large, imposing scale with a strong sense of formal symmetry in its facade, demanding attention and conveying a sense of permanence and stability for your enterprise.

A Stately Foundation for Success

The prominently raised 1st floor, adorned with detailed stonework, provides an impressive, authoritative entrance that enhances the building's grandeur and projects corporate integrity.

2ND FLOOR

4TH FLOOR

Cincinnati's Central Business District is undergoing several major development projects in 2025, primarily focused on civic space improvements, office-to-residential conversions, and significant convention center area revitalization.

Cincinnati's Central Business District Major Development Projects

Office-to-Residential Conversions

A significant trend in the CBD is the conversion of older office buildings into apartments to meet housing demand. Examples include the Textile Building (282 units) and the redevelopment of the Garfield Suites Hotel into apartments.

The Banks Entertainment District

This expansive mixed-use development along the Ohio River continues to be a vibrant area, featuring restaurants, retail, hotels, residential units, and event venues like the Andrew J. Brady Music Center.

Paycor Headquarters

The former Saks Fifth Avenue has been converted into downtown headquarters for Paycor, a human resources and payroll company. This $36 million project includes office space and ground floor retail/restaurant space.

Duke Energy Convention Center

A major $200 million renovation and expansion project is underway to modernize the convention center with all-new mechanical, electrical, and plumbing systems and a new facade to attract larger events. This project is expected to be completed in time for events booked in early 2026.

Convention Center District Revitalization and Expansion

These projects signify a strategic shift in the downtown area from a job hub to a more dynamic, mixed-use community where people live, work, and socialize.

New Marriott Convention Center Hotel

The $536 million project, estimated to open in 2028, will feature 80,000 sq ft of ballrooms, retail and meeting space, a restaurant, 700 rooms, outdoor events terrace, and a bar with downtown skyline views.

Elm Street Plaza

As part of the revitalization, the former Millennium Hotel site is being transformed into a 2.5-acre outdoor gathering space. This new park includes green space, a dog park, Pavilion Bar, art, and seasonal ice rink.
